National Reined Cow Horse Association

Who Are We?

We are a group of horsewomen and horsemen that came together to form an alliance for the sole purpose of promoting and helping improve the quality of the western reined stock horse; to promote exhibits, cow horse events, and contests in expositions and shows; to promote the training of reined cow horses; and to promote interest in reined working cow horses among other horsemen and horsewomen from this province of Ontario and surrounding areas.

Reined Cow Horse History

In the competitive reined cow horse arena, the finesse of modern horsemanship blends seamlessly with time-tested training methods. The show horses of today trace their performance roots to the meticulous, centuries-old process used by the California vaquero to create his most valuable working partner: a horse that could be controlled by a whisper-light touch on the reins, yet still possess the speed and grit to master the rankest cattle.

The vaqueros needed a quick-footed, intelligent horse with nerves of steel to assist them with daily chores like branding, sorting and doctoring. A trusted cow horse was a necessity, not an option, and over time, the vaquero developed a training system still revered for its elegance and precision.

The National Reined Cow Horse Association was formed in 1949, with the goal of preserving and educating the public about the rich history of this traditional horsemanship. The NRCHA is responsible for promoting the sport and ensuring high standards of competition. The association has continued to celebrate the early California traditions of highly trained working cow horses and today, continues to work to keep the vaquero tradition alive in today's equine industry.

The NRCHA also supports numerous affiliate clubs like ours—NERCHA—across North America and abroad. These groups serve as the association's backbone, holding many NRCHA-sanctioned competitions and events each year. The affiliate clubs provide the starting point for riders who are interested in reined cow horses and we, NERCHA, take this role very seriously.

Today's Reined Cow Horse

Reined cow horse events are "open" to all breeds. Reined cow horse is a type of competition, known also as working cow horse, where horses are asked to first perform a reining pattern, often referred to as the "dry work". The other portion consists of working a single live cow released into the arena, often referred to as the "fence work". The horse is asked to first hold the cow at one end of the arena (known as "boxing"), then run the cow along the rail of the arena, turning it back without the aid of the fence (known as "down the fence"). Lastly, the horse maneuvers the cow into the center of the arena and causes the cow to circle in a tight circle in each direction (known as "circling"). All of this must be accomplished before the cow is exhausted. Horses are judged on accuracy, timing, and responsiveness, as well as how they handle a single cow. Horses that can perform these tasks are called "reined cow horses," "cow horses," "stock horses," or "working cow horses."

In three-event competitions, the rider does the above two events (reining and fence work) and "herd work". The herd work is similar to cutting, where a single cow is "cut" from a herd of cattle and prevented from returning to the herd by the intervention of the horse and rider. Herd work is most often included in three-year-old futurity and four- and five-year-old derby classes. Herd work is also included in a "Spectacular" class. Horses may force cattle to move, but generally are not supposed to deliberately collide with the cow. The horse is judged on the ability to control the cow, as well as speed, balance, responsiveness to the rider.

Today's reined cow horse competitors train horses at three levels, similar to the original California method. Younger horses (three-year-olds) can compete with a snaffle bit. Four- and five-year-old horses can compete in either a snaffle bit or bosal. Horses six years and older horses compete in a "bridle". There are also two-rein classes, which are for horses of any age that have not shown in the bridle going down the fence.

Working cow horse events are also held at breed specific shows, such as American Quarter Horse Association shows.

2.2.1.1 Beginner 1 Boxing Class

- In order to enter the riders must be Non-Pro riders as per the NERCHA rule book and cannot have participated in any sanctioned organization’s class (i.e., NRCHA, AQHA, NRHA, NCHA) prior to January 1st of the current year, nor can they cross-enter into any sanctioned organization’s class at any point during the current year.
- Riders cannot have participated in any down the fence classes (including Box Drive) at any club/organization prior to, nor can they cross-enter into any down the fence or Box Drive classes at any point during the current year at any club/organization. Doing so will result in immediate removal of novice eligibility.
- Riders will compete under AQHA bit rules, with the modification that riders can ride one handed or two handed, regardless of the bit. Riders can continue to compete in this division for up to three (3) years so long as they are still eligible according to the above qualifications.
- The class will consist of a simplified reining pattern in which the rider will do 1 ½ spins in both directions and will also allow riders the option to perform simple lead changes or flying lead changes. See “Simple Lead Change Judging Criteria” below for reference. There will be no preference/credit given to completing a flying lead change or a simple lead change.
- The reined work will be followed by the 50 seconds of boxing the cow along the short wall. The riders must demonstrate the ability to control the cow and effectively “box”
- Riders can earn a score in the reined work and/or cow work of below 60.

SIMPLE LEAD CHANGE JUDGING CRITERA (NRHA JUDGING)

- Section 1. In classes which allow simple lead changes, the ideal change is to jog for one stride to change leads. Any deviation from the ideal change that takes place in the lead change area as described by the Handbook would not incur a penalty but deserves less credit. In order of decreasing difficulty would be jogging more than one stride, walking rather than jogging, stopping during the change and finally more than one attempt to execute the change. Penalties would apply if the lead change was early or late just as they would for a flying lead change.
- Section 2. Judges should allow one-quarter circle coming into the change and one-quarter circle going past the change as an allowable simple change area (safe zone), with only the out of lead penalties applying. For example, a horse that comes across and takes 3 strides past “center” to complete the simple change, but before the end of the first quarter, would not get a break of gait penalty but would incur a one point out of lead penalty. The same logic would apply for changes before reaching center. All penalty applications would apply out of that “safe zone.”
